

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH SAMPSON DINED.

The children and grandchildren of Mr and Mrs Joseph Sampson, of this city, surprised the old folks by going to the home of the good old people and taking a nice lunch and spreading same at their home. This pleasant surprise for Mr and Mrs Sampson, occasioned by the 90th birthday of Mr Sampson, we hope may be repeated for many years to come.

MISS TYE GIVES CANDY PARTY

Miss Bonnie Tye entertained at candy making Monday evening of this week. Her guests were: Misses Martha Albright, Alma Freeman, Margaret Booze, Dewey Meredith; Messrs. Herbert Jones, Claude Cole, Clyde Stanfill, Joe Stansbury.

Stated The Facts

The editor of an Indiana paper became tired of being called a liar so he announced that he would tell the truth in the future. The first issue thereafter contained the following: "John Bonin, the laziest merchant in town, made a trip to Bellville yesterday."

"John Beyle, our groceryman, is doing a poor business. His store is dirty, dusty and noisily odoriferous. How can he expect to do much?"

"Rev. Styx preached last Saturday night on 'charity.' The sermon was punk."

"Dave Soukey died at his home in this place. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. The fact is, he was drunk, and whiskey is what killed him."

"Married—Miss Sylvia Rhodes and James Conham, last Saturday evening at the Baptist parsonage. The bride is a very ordinary town girl who doesn't know any more than a jackrabbit about cooking, and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means, and has a gait like a far duck. The groom is well known as an up-to-date loafer. He's been living off the old folks all his life and don't amount to shucks. They will have a hard life."

The paper had no sooner reached the public than a committee was sent to him bearing a petition asking him to continue in the good old way, and stated that they believed him to be a truthful and honest man.—Burlington News.

HOUSE PASSES

ALASKA R. R. BILL

Measure Providing For The Construction of 1,000 Miles of Railroad Is Out of Upper House.

Responsibility For Route Is Placed With President.

BRADLEY EXPLAINS WHY HE OPPOSED PROJECT

Kentucky Needs Railroads, And Favoritism Is Shown, Says Senator.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Just before 7 o'clock tonight the bill for a government-constructed and owned railroad in Alaska, of an estimated length of 1,000 miles, was passed in the Senate by a vote of 46 to 16. Fifteen Republicans and one Progressive, Senator Poindexter, voted for the bill. Senators Hoke Smith and Bacon, of Georgia, and John Sharp Williams were the only Democrats to vote against it.

Senator Bradley, of Kentucky, one of the sixteen Senators who voted against the bill, in a statement as to why he opposed the measure, said:

"Why should the Government show this favoritism to Alaska? Why is Alaska better than any state in the Union? I deny that it is. We need railroads very much in some of the mountain sections of Kentucky. Immensely valuable natural resources are there ready to be developed. Why should the Government build a railroad to Alaska and refuse to build a railroad in Kentucky to reach the undeveloped portion of our state? The whole affair to my mind is exceedingly ill-advised and unfortunate and I cannot divest myself of the opinion that it establishes a very dangerous precedent."

Senator Poindexter's amendment which would direct the President to open part of the coal fields of Alaska and authorize the Government to operate mines was lost by a five voice vote.

A substitute section by Senator Cummins, limiting construction or purchase to one main line, was defeated, 35 to 24.

Responsibility Of President.

The bill places upon the President responsibility for the selection of the route from tidewater to the interior of Alaska, and the construction, equipment and operation or leasing of such lines as he may construct or buy to constitute this route. The broadest powers are conferred upon the President in carrying out his duties.

The bill provides for a redemption fund into which shall be paid seventy-five per cent of all moneys derived from the sale of public lands in Alaska or of the coal or mineral contents thereof. Machinery utilized in the construction of the Panama Canal is made available for the construction work.

Unavailing efforts to reduce the $40,000,000 appropriation authorized for the work were made during the closing hours of the debate. Senator Hoke Smith sought to have the appropriation reduced to $25,000,000 and Senator Smoot to $35,000,000.

Among other amendments defeated were the Morris amendment for Government steamship to Alaska; the Poindexter amendment for the sale of Alaska coal at cost to Pacific coast points, and the Cummins' substitute, limiting the construction to one main line.

Bill Is Amended.

With the consent of the Territorial Committee the bill was amended before passage to require the Senate's approval of the appointment of civil engineers receiving over $3,000 per annum; to forbid any payment for the good will of existing railways; giving injured employees the right to sue the Government and limiting the government's defenses to those provided for in the Federal employers' liability law of 1908.

A similar bill is pending in the House.

Militia in Bad Condition.

General A. L. Miles, Chief of the militia division of the War Department, gives the militia organization of the country a severe going over in his annual report just issued. He says it is top-heavy, ill-trained and inefficient.

Patriotism may be an element in persuading young men to ally themselves with the National Guard. But probably the real impelling force is in social reasons and the chances for pleasant outings while on tours of duty. When the encampments are made working affairs, with some approach to the conditions of real warfare, the incentive to become a militiaman is greatly reduced.

To get good work in any line you have to pay the price. Mechanics and business men are not going to drop their regular occupations and run off 10 to 20 pounds of flesh in exhausting hikes, merely for a few brass buttons and the fun of the annual dances. As long as no more tangible compensation is offered than the affection of Uncle Sam and the dubious frolic of 20 mile marches, the militiaman must necessarily be something of a tin soldier.

There are 10,000 applications for 400 jobs as income tax inspectors. Is it not delightful that there are so many patriots willing to make sacrifices to save their country?

It is claimed that the railroads should reduce the pay of high salaried officials, although these men have unusual difficulty in meeting the cost of living.

It is not true that John Lind remarked that the weather was pleasant the other day, as he never talks recklessly to interviewers.

His Little Ray of Sunshine

She sighed because the children tore Holes in the stockings that they wore:

At breakfast time she mourned her lot Because the coffee wasn't hot; She had a headache every night. But did she try as best she might To be cheerful? She did not.

She found her sorrow hard to bear Because he was no millionaire; She chided him day after day For failing to draw bigger pay:

When he came home in need of cheer Did she, all radiant, appear To give him sweet assurance? Nay!

She made complaints about her cook. She always had a hopeless look: She wished for things he couldn't buy She told him she'd be glad to die

And thus escape the ills she had: He sometimes thought he would be glad

If she could have her wish—but why? She often scolded him because Some men were richer than he was;

When they were asked out anywhere She never had "a thing to wear;" He never saw her smile nor heard Her say a hopeful, cheerful word; But it was all his fault—so there!

That such "rays of sunshine" are to be found right here in Barbourville, there is not the slightest doubt, and only bachelors might take heart and feel grateful that such "rays" do not brighten the sombre shadows of their days. They might have drawn one of these in the matrimonial lottery.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

The time is drawing near when the members of the Christian Church will begin to secure pledges for funds to erect their house of worship. In order to assist in raising the necessary money the pastor will deliver a sermon next Sunday morning on "The Gospel of Giving." He will use these words as a text: "Honor Jehovah with thy substance, and with the first-fruits of all thine increase: so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy vats shall overflow with new wine." (Prov. 3: 9, 10.) A large attendance is earnestly desired. It is hoped the entire membership may be present. Not only do we invite the members of the church, but all other persons who wish to hear the teaching of the Scriptures on the proper use of money, are cordially invited. All welcome. Subject of the evening discourse will be "The Second Coming of Christ."

SYNOPSIS.

Tommy North, returning to his room in Mrs. Moore's boarding house at 230 a. m., discovers the body of Capt. John Hanks, another roomer, with a knife wound on his breast. Suspicion rests upon a man giving the name of Lawrence Wade, who had called on Hanks in the evening and had been heard quarreling with Hanks. During the excitement a strange woman appears and takes into her own home across the street all of Mrs. Moore's boarders, including Miss Estrella, an invalid, who was confined to the room she occupied and whose brother was a favorite among the other boarders.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

While Rosalie Le Grange was preparing to move the invalid on the top floor, the police and the coroner straightened out affairs a little. There was much man in Tommy North. If he had played the craven in the first rush of his gruesome discovery, it was because he had awakened to that state of tense depression which comes with the sudden departure of drunkenness. He became defiant now; whereupon the police began to bully. While they were trying to make Mrs. Moore admit that she had not seen Tommy North come up the stairs, a detective sergeant put a sneering question to her—

"Well, who else could have done it? Who else has been here?"

And the inrush of memory brought a little shriek from Mrs. Moore.

"Mr. Wade—the gentleman who called tonight!" she cried. All at once her suspicions left the branded Mr. North. Mr. Wade had come late in the evening—and that, in the doctor's opinion, was just about the time when Captain Hanks must have died. Mr. Wade had called two or three times before, always at night. Trembling, she found his card, "Lawrence Wade, Curfew Club," in the plated tray at the hall door. Suddenly Miss Harding, who had been refusing all light on the events of the evening, gave a little shriek.

"Why, they were quarreling when I went—!" she cried. Then she stopped, as though fearful of her own words. The police turned on her. In a tumble of words and emotions, she told what she knew. Mr. Wade's late call, the high words, the fact that none had heard a sound from Captain Hanks's room after Wade left the house—that was enough for the coroner and the detectives. They packed Tommy North—sober, pale, but now thoroughly collected—into the patrol wagon, sent the hue and cry to the Curfew Club after Mr. Wade, put the house under guard, and called their day's work done.

And the rest of the Moore establishment, having first received dreadful warning concerning the fate of absconding witnesses, finished that uneasy night under the ministrations of Rosalie Le Grange at 442.

CHAPTER II.

The Chief.

Inspector Martin McGee, the middle-aged solid executive of the New York detectives, sat in his businesslike office running over the reports on the Hanks murder, now less than a calendar day old but already the subject of those innumerable extras which the newsboys were shouting under his windows. Nothing in the formal documents before him served to give him any new light. Lawrence Wade—that looked like the man. Wade was missing from the Curfew Club when the police arrived; however, through the good memories of a taxicab driver and a ticket seller, he had been traced to Boston and there arrested in the very act of engaging European passage.

The formal documents in the Hanks case interested Inspector McGee less, a great deal less, than an informal verbal report made that morning by the sergeant in command of the reserve.

"We didn't know nothing about her, Chief," he said, "except that she had an order from you telling us to keep our hooks off her. Forgot the name—something French with a L—e behind it. It was all right, wasn't it?"

Inspector McGee understood at once; and the information brought a little thrill. He had given only two such papers in his career; and the other was held by a man. So Rosalie Le Grange had bobbed up again—Rosalie Le Grange, trance, test and clairvoyant medium, follower of a small half-criminal trade but friend of society against larger criminals. How curiously that woman had glanced in and out of his life, and what luck she had brought!

As he bent over his desk in unaccustomed meditation, the doorman brought a card—"Mrs. Rosalie Le Grange"—and behind him she appeared.

"Well, well!" exclaimed Martin McGee, rising as though to some great personage, "back again! Say, you just couldn't keep out of big doings, could you? And how pretty you look—prettier and prettier all the time! What hauled you into the Hanks case?"

"I ain't in the Hanks case at all," responded Rosalie Le Grange, answering his second question first, "at least not deep, Martin McGee." She flashed upon him her dimples, snapped at him her great gray eyes.

"Nearly everybody that's lived long enough in New York has had a murder or a burglary or something in the same block. It was bound to happen to me in time. It happened; and instead of minding my own business like the rest, I butted straight in. When the reasons for a thing get too tangled-up for you and me to follow, we stick a label on it an' call it luck. But there," she checked herself, "this is just one of my platform inspirational talks like I used to give the sitters in my test seances. Only then I laid it to the spirits. Now I lay it to Rosalie Le Grange."

"Used to?" echoed Inspector McGee.

"Does that mean you've cut it out?" "Well, do these clothes and this five-dollar-an-hour massage on my poor old face look like I got 'em from sitters at two dollars a throw?" inquired Rosalie Le Grange. "Say, ask me about it, please. I'm dying to tell."

"All right; I've asked," responded Martin McGee, a kind of dull fire illuminating his clean-shaven jowly police countenance.

"Now," said Rosalie Le Grange, "I'm going to astonish you, Marty McGee. I got it from Robert H. Norcross—the railroad king."

McGee's face fell. This mascot of his, this curious good fairy who had skipped in and out of his career, scattering golden successes, was a kind of an ideal. That she should "work" a doddering millionaire—as Norcross had been in his last years—for the tainted coin of aged folly, was a blow to what idealism an Inspector of detectives may hope still to cherish. Rosalie, skilled from youth to catch and interpret the unconsidered expression of the human countenance, read his emotion at once.

"Now, I don't mean at all what you mean, Martin McGee," she said. "Listen. It don't matter what I did, or how I did it—but I saved this Robert H. Norcross from makin' about the biggest kind of a fool out of himself. Do you remember," she asked suddenly, "that they probated the Norcross will secret? Nobody ever knew exactly what he did with his money, except his nephew got most of it."

"I remember," said Inspector McGee. And then, on a sudden burst of laughter, "Gee! Wouldn't the newspapers give a heap to get this story you're going to tell?"

"They would," responded Rosalie Le Grange, "and that's why you'll never breathe a word to a soul. But there! I always knew who I could trust—and you're one of 'em. The reason was a codicil or whatever you call it. He left me—in token of service and friendship," it said—an old house he owned over by North River, an' stocks—well six thousand a year to make one bite of it!"

"Good Lord! He did?" cried Martin McGee.

Rosalie nodded solemnly, but her eyes shone.

"Now I played that medium game on the square, you understand," she said, "again and again. I passed up chances to hook just such old dopes

"Good Lord! He Did?"

as Norcross. My rule was always straight sitting at two dollars a head, an' no extras. I faked 'em, of course. But I heartened 'em up. I handed 'em good advice. I kept silly fool girls from goin' to the bad. I gave weepy old widows the only real recreation they ever had. An' here, right at the end, comes an honest piece of money so big that I could have played crooked all my life, an' never even got a chance at anythin' like it. An' last March I come into my money. I closed up shop an' sold my test books an' stopped this medium business, an' started to be a lady. Six thousand a year ain't too much to do that job in New York, even when you don't have to pay house rent.

"There was six months' income waiting for me when the lawyers settled everything up, an' I put that into things that I wanted all my life."

"It wasn't till last week that I looked myself over an' found I wasn't happy. To make no bones of it, bein' a real lady—which I'd wanted to be all my life—jest bored me to death. Well, last week I set down and had a good long dispute with myself. 'You can't go back to the business,' says I. 'Rosalie Le Grange, you've got jest what you've always wanted, an' yet you ain't happy. What you need is a compromise,' said I. An' next morning it come to me. Maybe the spirits sent it. You can laugh, Inspector McGee, but there's something in this spirit thing. I used to think there was, an' then again I'd think there wasn't—even in my own clairvoyance."

"Well, anyhow, it came to me like a flash—boarders! I could run my house just the way I wanted, because I needn't look out for profits. An' I could take jest who I wanted and shut out whoever I didn't want. The thought chirped me a lot. So I fixed all the bedrooms up sensible with good white and gold beds and adult-size towels an' gave them all little fixy touches that made them homelike."

"An' I was jest ready to begin to look around an' advertise when—this happened. The idea struck me as soon as I saw the state of the people in that house. The police would put it under guard, an' the boarders would be out of a home. So I moved 'em over bodily, all but the one you pinched—the sick little dago woman from uptairs, an' the two girls, and that funny old Professor Noll. An' I'm even putting up with the landlady—if it was other people's troubles I was lookin' for, I got 'em all right!"

"Gee!" ejaculated Martin McGee. "I can use you—"

"Yes, you can," interrupted Rosalie, "but you won't. I know what you want. You want me to go to work an' help cinch this case. Well, I won't. I'm here for, Martin McGee—beyond the pleasure I always took in your society—here Rosalie let her dimples play and flash—"is to tell all I know or saw, so's you won't be callin' me at the inquest an' gettin' me a feature in the papers."

"How about this man North?" asked the Inspector.

"Well, in the first place, I like him," said Rosalie; "I like that boy. Looks like an alibi for him when the landlady says he come up the stairs only a minute before he hollered, an' the doctor says that this Hanks had been dead two or three hours. Appeared to me like he was jest jarred out of a drunk, too. How about this Lawrence Wade or whatever his name was—the man who called with the bag? Got him?"

"He was arrested this morning in Boston."

"Skippin'? Looks bad. But now, Inspector, just to close things up, I'm out of this case. I've given you all I know. Your police will be botherin' my boarders a lot with questions; an' so will the reporters. Just trust me to steer that. You keep me out."

Martin McGee sighed.

"All right, Rosalie; but I'd like your help. Still, I owe you lots of good turns, and the case don't look as mysterious, after all. I guess it's that fellow Wade."

"I guess probably," admitted Rosalie. "Most mysteries ain't mysteries at all after the first day. Well, now, I'm botherin' a busy man in office hours an' I must run along. Let's see—five minutes to four, an' it's bad luck to go before the hour. Suppose you tell me about yourself an' how the world's usin' you?"

Inspector McGee sat back in his office chair and waxed eloquent. However, his narrative of pulls and promotions and Tammany influence was never finished. For before the hour struck, the silent attentive doorman entered and laid on his desk a card. Inspector McGee took it up, glanced at it perfunctorily, and suddenly let out an exclamation which had all the power and verve of an oath.

"By the great cats!" he exclaimed, "look at that—Mrs. John H. Hanks!"

Rosalie took the card and fingered it.

"The widow, I bet."

"Thought he was single," remarked the Inspector. "Though, after all, I'd just been taking it for granted."

"Well," said Rosalie, rising, "that's come-again-son for me."

But the Inspector was observing her with eyes which held quizzical invitation.

"Honest now," he said, "wouldn't you like to sit in on this interview?"

Rosalie flashed her dimples and contemplated him for a second. Then, with the unexpected lightness which marked all her movements, she sat down.

"See here, Martin McGee," she said, "you ain't goin' to make a fool of me, draggin' me into this case—but I'm dyin' to listen jest the same."

"Show them in," said the Inspector on the instant, and as though fearing that she would pull back her permission.

"But not unless she's willing," said Rosalie, as they waited.

And then through the door came two women.

"Good Lord!" commented Rosalie under her breath.

CHAPTER III.

Mrs. Hanks's Story.

The first was tall and big. But her height was mainly the superb carriage of her shoulders, her size but the ripe roundness of a goddess figure. She was dark; she was young; she was beautiful. Rosalie Le Grange, connoisseur of her sex, sat regarding her spellbound.

The second woman—in fact she was little more than a girl—was slender, blonde and fragile—her quality was elfin. Rosalie could spare her but a glance.

"I am Mrs. Hanks, widow of the man who was killed last night," said the taller woman; and she hesitated.

It was not the custom of Inspector Martin McGee to rise when women entered his office in the role of the accused, or of witnesses. A little brutality of attitude, he felt, put them in a meek and humble mood for the subsequent Third Degree proceedings. But this woman—or was it the respected presence of Rosalie Le Grange?—drew him to his feet.

"Won't you sit down?" he said.

"Thank you. May I introduce Miss Elizabeth Lane? She is here to verify what I have to say." All this with perfect simplicity. Her eyes traveled then, with a quick glance of inquiry, to Rosalie Le Grange.

"This," said the Inspector, taking his cue at a quick prod from Rosalie's foot, "is Mrs. Le Grange. She is the lady who came into the house right after the accident—and took the boarders over to her place for the night. She's kept them there ever since. She was just telling me what she knew. Maybe you'd like to hear it."

"I should like very much to hear it," said Mrs. Hanks earnestly.

"But maybe you want to be alone just at first," interposed Rosalie, making a pretense of rising.

"No—there is nothing secret," replied Mrs. Hanks. "I see no reason why you should not stay. Indeed, you may be able to help us."

Now Martin McGee summoned the police stenographer and ordered him to stay within call. Gone from him was the heavy humor of his half-hour with Rosalie. He was the Chief—suspicious and brutal.

"I must warn you," he said, "that if you are implicated in this case, anything you say will be used against you at the trial." Generally that sudden statement made women tremble, drew from them a flood of words out of which McGee picked the flotsam and the jetsam of evidence. But Mrs. Hanks did not give the preliminary frightened start. She only transferred her limpid level gaze from Rosalie's face to Inspector McGee's.

"It would be impossible to implicate me," dozens of people can testify that I was in Arden, a hundred miles north, last night—that I have not left Arden for more than a month. Perhaps," she continued, checking an unformed sentence on the lips of Inspector McGee, "I had better start at the beginning and tell you all about it."

She was talking "fine," Inspector McGee reflected. Having got her started, his best course was to mollify her until she began to run down. "That's always best," he said. Quite simply Mrs. Hanks began her talk.

"I married Captain Hanks ten years ago—when I was nineteen. He was nearly thirty-five then, although he said that he was younger; and he had just come back from Alaska. He said that he got his title in the Bolivian army. I have since had reason to doubt that. He was an engineer by profession. I realize now how little mother and I knew about him. But he was the kind of person who carried everything before him—you deferred to him in those days in spite of your better judgment. And my mother was very trusting. Then, too, Captain Hanks was a very charming man. Afterward I found out how he lived. That, for me, was the beginning of trouble. He was a brilliant man. He might have made a good living in any one of a variety of ways. But he simply would not work. He preferred to live by his wits. Cards mainly. It was long before I realized that. He was very clever at concealment, and it never occurred to me to doubt his word. In fact, I did not realize it all until after our marriage. We were in New York—" she hesitated again. "Shall I tell you the details?"

And now Rosalie Le Grange, who had been sitting in unaccustomed silence, spoke for the first time.

"You'll excuse me, Inspector," she said with an asperity so well assumed that Martin McGee wondered for a moment whether she was really offended. "But Mrs. Hanks don't seem to know her rights. She hasn't seen any lawyer. A person don't knock around this world for forty years without gettin' a line on what her rights are. I've learned. An' I'm goin' to be your lawyer here, Mrs. Hanks. Now as long as you tell the truth, which of course you will, it don't matter about details. What the Inspector is after is who done this murder, an' anythin' touchin' on the facts. It don't matter how you learned it, but you did learn that Captain Hanks was a crook."

Mrs. Hanks winced visibly at the ugly word which finished Rosalie's charge. But she managed a nod of assent.

"Thank you, Mrs. Le Grange. Yes, I learned that he was a—not entirely honorable. In time I realized that he was using me as a lure for his operations in cards—and other things. We were on our way around the world. Wherever we went, he made me entertain men that they might play cards afterward—and be swindled. The end came at Shanghai—he stopped here and made a little effort before she went on—"It was a young Australian—foolish, and with a great deal of money. Shall I go into that?" she paused here, and her gaze traveled with another appeal to the face of Rosalie Le Grange.

"Now, Inspector," said Rosalie, "I don't see why this lady has to tell all that. It's enough that the game was crooked. You left him, of course."

Safest Place for Jewels.
A few years ago one often heard that women who possessed jewels of value were becoming "afraid" to wear them owing to the risks which accompanied displaying their property in public. It became the custom to seek some place of security where the more precious possessions could be deposited. Jewels were "banked" or committed to the protection of safes and strong rooms. But gradually the sense of security has in some degree departed. The modern woman has no capacity for matching the resourceful ingenuity of the modern thief. The most astounding cases of jewel robbery show that no precaution is beyond being intelligently anticipated. After all, it is not surprising that those who possess jewels of value are beginning to realize again that their safest place is that for which they were intended and are wearing them more than ever.

Out of His Sphere of Influence.
Father Farrell was addressing a little group of boys at the mission one night, and it wasn't long before all but one of them had been moved to tears. The good priest watched this boy closely, but he remained perfectly possessed. Finally, pointing a finger at the lad, he called out, "Why aren't you crying?" "Oh," says the boy, "I don't belong to this parish."—Judge.

Eggs-actly.
De Bragg, the actor, was boasting of thrills.

"Why," he said, "war has no terrors for me any longer. I have been where the shells were bursting to the right of me, to the left of me, before me, behind me, so that I was even struck by small fragments, although, fortunately, not seriously wounded by them."

"Oh, I remember that time," said a quiet man who had not before opened his mouth, "it was when you opened to 'Hamlet' eight years ago. I threw one of those eggs myself."

TELLS PRESENCE OF POISON
Pharmacologist of Southern University Reports Invention of Valuable Appliance.
By means of an appliance devised by Prof. W. W. Abel, head of the department of pharmacology of the Johns Hopkins university, it has been made possible, it is declared, to determine whether persons thought to be suffering from the effects of poisons are really under the influence of drugs, and to be able to discover almost immediately the poison they have taken.

The contrivance consists of a series of coils and tubes which are submerged in saline solution and its action is said to be the same as that of the kidney.

In making the test for poison it is necessary to have the blood stream flow through the tubes. This is done by connecting the tubes with the jugular vein and the carotid artery.

The blood passes through the tubes, which are then immersed in a pan containing a warm solution. By means of a porous substance connecting the glass tubes the foreign and poisonous

HIS FIRST YEAR AT FARMING IN SASKATCHEWAN

Win Premiums and Prizes in Competition With the World.

There are thousands of young men filling positions in stores and offices, and in professional occupations throughout the United States, who in their earlier life, worked on the farm. The allurements of city life were attractive, until they faced the stern reality. These people would have done better had they remained on the farm. Many of them, convinced of this, are now getting "back to the land," and in the experience, no better place offers nor better opportunity afforded, than that existing in Western Canada. Many of them have taken advantage of it, and there are to be found today, hundreds of such, farming in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The conditions that surround farming operations today are so much superior to those in existence during their early farming days, that there is an attraction about it. Improved machinery, level and open plains, no rocks to shun, no trees to cut down, but wide stretches with mile-long furrows, elevators to handle the grain, railways to carry it to market, and bring almost to their doors the things necessary to operate. Splendid grazing areas, excellent opportunities for raising cattle. These things are all so different from what they once were that there is reason to speak of the attractions. R. H. Crossman of Kindersley, Saskatchewan, the man who won such splendid prizes at the International Dry Farming Congress held at Tulsa, Oklahoma, last fall, grew the prize grains during his first year farming. Up to 1913 he was an engineer and the only knowledge he had of farming was that obtained when he was a boy. That was very useful; in fact it was valuable to him. He had not forgotten it. Thousands with as little experience as he had can do well by taking up one of the 160-acre grants offered by the Canadian government. — Advertisement.

English Exclusiveness.

The Englishman, as everyone knows, is inclined to be individual and independent, if not exclusive. He is happy with his family in his country mansion, where a high hedge insures seclusion, and permits only the chimneys of his house to be seen from the road. He does not crave excitement and conviviality. He prefers the quiet and peace of the semi-rural suburb to the whirl of the city. He does not like to be within too easy access of the maelstrom. The automobile and the train and trolley cars are quite speedy enough. With his family about him, and the city and its business cares at a safe distance, the Englishman is happy.—Suburban Life.

FRIENDLY TIP.
Restored Hope and Confidence.

After several years of indigestion and its attendant evil influence on the mind, it is not very surprising that one finally loses faith in things generally.

A N. Y. woman writes an interesting letter. She says:

"Three years ago I suffered from an attack of peritonitis which left me in a most miserable condition. For over two years I suffered from nervousness, weak heart, shortness of breath, could not sleep, etc.

"My appetite was ravenous but I felt starved all the time. I had plenty of food but it did not nourish me because of intestinal indigestion. Medical treatment did not seem to help. I got discouraged, stopped medicine and did not care much whether I lived or died.

"One day a friend asked me why I didn't try Grape-Nuts food, stop drinking coffee and use Postum. I had lost faith in everything, but to please my friend I began to use both and soon became very fond of them.

"It wasn't long before I got some strength, felt a decided change in my system, hope sprang up in my heart and slowly but surely I got better. I could sleep very well, the constant craving for food ceased and I have better health now than before the attack of peritonitis.

"My husband and I are still using Grape-Nuts and Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Editorial.

Four persons living in the town of Pine Knot, McCreary County, who are personal enemies of Judge Sampson, have caused to be filed in the Legislature charges against him asking for his removal from the office of Circuit Judge. This all comes out of the fight between Pine Knot and Whitley City for the County Seat of McCreary County. Everyone knows, who has had any experience in such a fight how bitter the partisans are. There is no politics that equals a county seat fight. The contest between Whitley City and Pine Knot is no exception. It has been going on for nearly two years and growing more bitter each day. Whitley City has won in two elections by handsome majorities, but Pine Knot people are contesting the election.

The people of this district know the manner in which Judge Sampson has performed the duties incumbent upon him as Judge. It is a well known fact, since he came in office two years ago that he has tried and disposed of more common law and equity cases than any Judge who ever presided in this district in the same length of time, and has cleaned up entirely the criminal docket in each of these large counties. It is also well known that Judge Sampson is a persistent and industrious worker in court, beginning at 8 o'clock each morning running until 12 o'clock noon; meeting again at 1 o'clock and running until 5 o'clock, and beginning again at 6:30 at night and running from 9 to 11 o'clock.

The boot legger and blind tiger man has been compelled since Judge Sampson took the bench to give up his infamous practice and to take up some lawful and honest way of earning a living. In like manner, at our last general election the vote buyer and seller were compelled to conform to the law, and desisted from the practice of buying and selling votes, and as a consequence, we have had the cleanest election ever held in the counties of Knox and Whitley in their history.

There is not a single charge made against Judge Sampson by these Pine Knot people that can be sustained by evidence. In each instance where evidence was given by a witness on stand he was on cross examination compelled to admit that the wrong which he alleges against Judge Sampson was a mere shadow or shell, and without foundation or fact did not exist. Each charge is easily and fully explained by the evidence given upon the hearing, and can be made to the public by abundant evidence right here, in the district.

The city papers have been giving the worst side of the prosecution, but have given nothing of the defense.

Judge Sampson like other men has his enemies. The corporations and their influence generally are against him, but the laboring man; the toiler and those who make their living by honest effort have no complaint to make against Judge Sampson, but are standing up many thousands strong in this district commending his every act and denouncing the charges against him as wholly unfounded.

If the Committee hearing these charges at Frankfort really knew the sentiments of the people in this great district, and how well and faithfully Judge Sampson is performing his duties, and how little there is in the Pine Knot fellows who signed their names to that paper, as well as the charges they prefer against Judge Sampson, the matter would be easily and quickly disposed of.

A Warning Voice.

The people are sick of radical legislation and business is anxious to take a new start and go ahead. The corporations are obeying the law. Proof is found on every side. They are meeting the most exacting requirements in a spirit of fair and honorable compliance with every ruling, no matter how much hardship it may involve. Let them go on and make the fight to win our share of the world's commerce.

With a reduced tariff, and increased free trade, we must seek foreign markets or close our shops. During the past three years we have been winning foreign markets handsomely. The expansion in our exports, of farm, mining and manufacturing products has been unparalleled in the commercial history of our times. All this has been concurrent with the development of what has been stigmatized as "big business."

The expansion of our exports would have been impossible without an expansion of big business, yet we are encouraging one and seeking to destroy the other. The heaviest advances in wages and the most noticeable lessening of hours of toil, the widest distribution of pension funds and profit sharing plans come while these great business organizations were being built up. Are conditions better to-day while these great corporations are being torn down than they were before?

What good is being done by keeping up the relentless fight against big business? What help has this been to the consumer? It has not reduced the cost of living. It has not opened a single factory, or added a name to the payroll. Is it being done merely to show the politician's power? Let the Democratic party realize its opportunity, and as Ex-Senator Bailey said it will lay the foundations for a long lease of power.

The inconceivable folly of continuing the present program with shops closing and business marking time is admitted on all sides. The note of warning sounded by that strong and steadfast supporter of President Wilson, the New York World, in these significant words is commended to the consideration of Congress:

"The country needs time to adjust itself to the legislation already enacted by the present Congress, and many of the amendments proposed to the Sherman act spell another long period of litigation, with no definite promise of beneficial results. Let it be remembered that if business depression follows careless trust legislation the discredit will fall in fact upon the Trust and Currency laws, to the undoing of most of the good already accomplished."

A striking evidence of the fair intention of our manufacturers, of their good will toward the Administration and their purpose to aid in the success of the new Tariff Law is found in the resolution unanimously adopted at the recent Annual Meeting of the American Protective Tariff League, as follows:

Resolved, That the League urges every manufacturer and every merchant and every other factor in national prosperity to give every support possible to public confidence and work out and solve the new problems of industry under the Underwood Tariff Bill, as best they may. Whatever may be done to check the constantly increasing number of unemployed and overcome the obviously bad bargain, in international trade conditions, made by the present Congress, we hope will be done before the learning of the "New Freedom" lesson becomes too expensive nationally and entails more suffering and want than is actually necessary to convince the public of the economic errors in the theories which caused the Underwood Free Trade Bill to be passed by the Congress.

Bear in mind that this is the resolution of a Republican Protective Tariff Association. Its significance is obvious.—Leslie's.

SMILES BY ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Back to The Farm.

O, Ye who in the cities dwell, and work your fingers off to swell the fortunes of the idle rich, whose autos you find in the ditch, forsake the streets of brick and stone, the towns of heartache, grief and groan, and seek the blooming countryside, where all the happy folks abide!

There you may harvest oats and hay, and put in eighteen hours a day, and breathe the balmy sunlight air, and have a mortgage here and there. It is the natural retreat for men who've worn away their feet beneath a load of city cares, by climbing miles of city stairs. The country calls us—let's away and bask in piles of new mown hay, and gather melons from the trees and dodge the redhot bumblebees.

How sweet it is, at early morn, to stand and view your growing corn! The stalks of green that sway and nod in every zephyr that's abroad! How sweet to lean upon the fence figure thus: "Some five months hence this corn will all be husked, and then I'll have all kinds of shining yen! Five thousand bushels I expect, and, if my figures are correct, the girl shall have their silken gowns, and I some flossy handmedowns. I'll buy a new motor car, and then we'll galivant afar and visit cousin's Jane and Sue, and aunt Lenore and uncle Lou." 'Tis pleasant to stand and dream, while in the sun the corn rows gleam—a joy unknown to city folks, who strive and strain beneath their yokes.

The gentle granger leans once more upon his fence and gazes o'er the corn rows rippling in the sun, now changed from green to dusty dun. "Alas," he sighs, the prospect's dark! no rain since Noah sailed his ark! My hogs are all too sick to root, my hens don't lay their kind of fruit, my cows are dry, my horses lame, and I am weary of the game! There won't be corn enough this year to feed one sad-eyed brindle steer, and all the work that I have done won't bring three sous in wooden mon. Oh, how I envy those who live in crowded towns, where, if they give their labor by the week or day, they're pretty sure to draw their pay!

Oh, let us from the towns depart and get back close to nature's heart where drouths and storms and wind and hail can make our work of no avail. Oh, let us plow the loam and sand and have a mortgage on the land, while city guys, who know the game, are clipping coupons from the same. The urban life's the life for fools; let us get out among the mules, the clucking hens, and things like those, and work for less than board and clothes.

You cannot judge a man by his looks, because he may be cross eyed.

QUESTION—How are you women on the modern skirt question? Divided.

A Holy Roller preacher in another State became so wrought up over his subject that he let a rattlesnake bite him five times to show that he was immune from poison. His assistant delivered a most pleasing sermon that evening.

There was a man of color working on a house and fell from the second story, hitting on his head, on a rock, and bursted the rock into several pieces. The foreman said, Rastus it's a wonder it didn't kill you. Rastus said: "Well boss I guess it would if I hadn't hit on de rock."

This winter the weather man has been as busy as a one eyed boy at a three-ring circus, trying to keep up with the weather, and has been just as inaccurate.

Exhilarating Sport

First Tourist abroad—Ha, ha, ha! This is worth all the time, money and bother I've spent over here!

Second Tourist—How's that? First Tourist—I deliberately kissed the little servant maid with the worst gossip in town looking on. There she is over there telling my wife about it, and the old lady can't understand a word of the language.—Judge.

As the result of the demand for economy, it is believed that Congress will vote against everything that is not backed by the politicians.

Let's Have Dinner--For Once I'm Hungry

Oh, Ho! ROOT JUICE Makes You Eat Like a Wolf and Digest Like an Ostrich.

Tut, tut, don't say you are not hungry, can't eat, digest or suffer after. That's a complaint of yesterday. Get a few doses of ROOT JUICE and see what happens. You'll know what good, healthy hunger is, you'll forget about indigestion and dyspepsia in a hurry and you'll eat and enjoy the biggest meal you've had in many a day. What's more you'll experience the greatest surprise of your life—when that dinner and supper have no more to say to you after it. You'll eat back and bloat like

"Sakee Ah, John, You Hungry? That ROOT JUICE is a Marvel." That you did before and you'll be ready for another hot, luscious feast at supper time and more big meals tomorrow.

Never you mind what failed to help you or what you've tried before or how much money you have wasted on uncertain things, you just try ROOT JUICE for ten days and prove these words. It's simply not to give results or back goes your money. You're taking no chances this time. ROOT JUICE is guaranteed to give satisfaction to everybody who uses it. The druggist will tell you that previous few ask for money back—everybody says you couldn't buy the benefit they've had for ten times the price and they want more of it.

ROOT JUICE can't hurt anybody, nothing unclean in it, no bad after effects, no reaction. It is made of roots and herbs and the way it works is simply wonderful. It does more than merely put the stomach in fine condition. It benefits the whole body, stops up the lazy liver and bowels, strengthens the kidneys and bladder and cleans out the blood. It puts new vim and force into the nerves and makes you feel like you have been made all over again with every part and organ working like a clock.

Don't you let anybody switch you off onto something else this time. You get guaranteed, money-back ROOT JUICE and try it for just ten days. Get it right off, today and take your first dose before your next meal. It's most, you'll like the taste, but you'll feel like screaming with joy and happiness when you see what glorious relief it brings. ROOT JUICE is sold at all first class drug stores at a dollar a bottle and it's worth a hundred. You'll see so too.

George Wants Work.

Black George Green, who was star end man in the Workhouse minstrel show on Christmas day, sauntered in The Times office Saturday and asked that a free ad be placed in the paper notifying the public that he is out of employment, and is, therefore, amenable to the law at any time as a vagrant.

"Boss," George requested, "jes say dat Ah is a general, all 'roun' man. Dishwashin', winderwashin', yahd work an' any ole thing is mah specialties. Ah lives at 1305 West Green street, an' ef somethin' aint done fur me pretty soon Ah is 'fraid Kunnel Jacobs wil git me agin. De police, yo' knows, aint got no mussy er symfaty fur a nigger."

Early Deserter.

A hide of last June was in court and told Judge Boldrick that the man who led her to the altar less than a year ago, had stopped contributing to her support. The duties of a husband were explained to the man and the "law laid down" to him in no uncertain terms. He was fined $15 and put under bond for six months. This decree was suspended on condition that he provide properly for the young woman and her very tiny baby.

Too Much Girl

There was much disorder in the court room. Deputy Bailiff Hall and Judge Boldrick were kept busy throughout the morning rapping with the gavels. The source of the disorder finally was discovered.

"Mr. Bailiff," commanded Judge Boldrick, "send that bevy of pretty girls out of the court room. We cannot permit such giggling and tittering."

And five girls, who were there to be witnesses in a case, were marched out to the woman's waiting room and compelled to remain there until their names were called.

Keep Perry Moving.

Perry Morgan, an unkept derelict, is a hard one, according to the police. This time Perry was arrested for stealing an automobile lamp valued at $9 and trying to dispose of it for 5-cents. He was fined $30.

It is said of Perry that the police all over the city run him off their beats the moment he is discovered.

"What chance have I got?" he told the arresting officer on one occasion. "You guys wont let me 'light.'"

Charles' Good Record.

Black Charles Miller, a dishwasher at Bradbury's restaurant, Floyd and Green streets, was profuse in his apologies from throwing a heavy coffee cup and hitting a waiter at place, behind the ear. As Charles took witness stand he addressed the judge thus:

"Please, suh, fergive me, Ah is stwvrtur causin' al dis'd'sturbance. De facks am dat dat niggah thew a plate an' some sawsahs at mah haid, which Ah ducks. Ah wuz, ob co's, c'mpelled to how de cup to sabe mahself frum injury."

Charles said he has not been arrested for thirty years, and for his good record was dismissed.

A "Little Obligation."

Mary Jones, black, was evidently well done for. Her face bore a very painful look and she appeared to be suffering great agony. She had sworn out a warrant for the arrest of black Charles Jones, 2608 Green alley, her "fren."

"Well," inquired Mr. Robinson, "what did Cholly do to you, Mary?"

"What did he do to me?" incredulously.

"You heard me?"

"Well, Mistah Robinson, he run me, an' he run me, an' h—run me."

"Well, what if he did run you? Where did he run you?"

"All 'roun' de house seve al tim s, an' at las' ovah de back fence an' c used me to dislocate myself."

"Ah, fedge," Charles explained, "we wuz only playin'! Mary an' me is de best ob frens, an' we only had a little obligation, dat's all; a little obligation."

"I know you, Charley," said Judge Boldrick; "five dollars."

In The Public Eye.

As the hearings for the anti trust bills are to be open, it is learned the reporters won't print anything that is said.

NEW TELEPHONE LINE

A numbe of citizens, of the down the river section of the county, have organized themselves into a stock company and built themselves a private telephone line which connects with the Barbourville Exchange and also the Williamsburg Exchange. This is a much needed improvement in this section of the county, as this is one of the richest farming sections in this part of the state, being in the rich and fertile valley of the Cumberland River. For many years the residents of this particular section have felt the need of a telephone system, but owing to the fact that it was strictly a farming community, the telephone companies could not see their way clear to build a telephone line for them and as a last resort, and in keeping with the spirit of progress which the people of this section have always shown, they organized a company among themselves and have now finished the building of their line, which gives them direct connection with Barbourville and Williamsburg.

The company was organized under the name of the Cumberland River Telephone Company and its capital stock is one thousand dollars, practically all of which has been sold and paid for. The telephones were installed this week and they now have telephone connection with Barbourville.

A house in Aurora, Illinois, collapsed while a tango dance was in progress. If the participants should ever want to go on the stage they could truthfully boast that they "brought down the house at Aurora."

Representative Members of The Protestant
Churches of Barbourville
Petition
General Assembly.

Barbourville, Ky.,
Jan. 25, 1914.

Hon. Joseph Bosworth,
Hon. J. C. Lay,

Frankfort, Ky.

Gentlemen:

At a meeting this day had in Barbourville, Ky., by representative members of the different protestant church denominations of the city, the undersigned were made a committee to definitely express to you their confidence in your good faith purpose to devote your aid towards all legislation looking to the best interests and welfare of the Commonwealth and every section thereof; to make known to you their unqualified condemnation of the traffic and use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and their disapproval of laws which undertake to legalize such traffic.

They keenly feel that which is well known to all, the incalculable damage which the use of intoxicating liquors has already done to Church, to the State, to the Nation and to civilization, and they tremble before the immense possibilities for ruin of which it is capable, all making plain that the only remedy for the eradication of the evils of this age-long curse lies in its inhibition by positive and unambiguous law to be rigidly enforced by a fearless, capable and conscientious judiciary. They respectfully petition you, as their Senator and Representative, respectively, in the General Assembly now in session to introduce in each of your honorable bodies and urge its enactment into law, such legislation as will cure all defects in existing statute, and as will enable the courts to easily and effectively enforce the same to the end that this age and time may bravely meet the demand that is upon them to save society from a repetition of the ruin and wreck which strong drink has wrought in the past, and is capable of doing still.

And finally, to urge that you devote your united efforts to secure the passage of an act submitting to the people of Kentucky the adoption of an amendment to the State Constitution prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes in Kentucky, if such amendment to the organic law is deemed necessary to authorize the enactment of a law to expel such liquors from the land.

Very respectfully,

James D. Black,
J. M. Robison,
W. C. Faulkner,
W. H. Green,
Robt. W. Cole,
Committee.

Most of the Congressmen listened to the President's Message instead of chasing around to the departments to get jobs for their constituents as they should have been doing.

Eleventh District, Advises All Fourth Class
Postmasters to Take The Approaching Examination.

I advise all fourth class postmasters in the Eleventh District and other friends who would like to hold such positions to take the approaching civil service examinations.

The Postmaster General has taken the position that he will enforce not only in its letter but also in its spirit the civil service laws relating to his department and that he will appoint the applicant receiving the highest average in the examinations referred to, whatever may be his political affiliation.

The country will applaud this position of the Postmaster General, as it will not only highly improve the service but in the long run will be far better than the old system for both the dominant political parties.

HIRAM MORRIS DEAD.

Uncle Hiram Morris, one of the grand old men of our county, died at his home on Knox Fork, on Tuesday of this week. Mr. Morris was a native of the state of Virginia, and came to Kentucky many years ago. Since the time when he first came to Knox County he has been one of our most respected and honored citizens. He was sixty one years of age, and surviving him are his wife and seven children. Five of these children are men who are respected citizens of the county, and one of his daughters is the wife of Hon. William R. Lay, one of the most prominent attorneys at the local bar and former County Attorney for Knox County for eight years. The other daughter is Miss Emma Morris who is one of the best known young ladies of the county.

The Advocate extends to the bereaved family its sincerest sympathy in their irreparable loss.

JAPAN POWER BEHIND HUERTA

PRESIDENT TO ISSUE ORDERS
RAISING EMBARGO ON SUP-PLIES FOR REBELS.

EMPEROR SUPPLIES
SINEWS OF WAR

Magdalena Bay Station May Be Price
Demanded For Keeping Mexicans Equipped With Arms.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington.—What was characterized by a senator who attended the white house conference as the "haunting activity of Japan in Mexico" formed the most serious subject for discussion between the president and the members of the foreign relations committee. The mystery that surrounded the conference was somewhat dissipated, but senators were exceedingly guarded in their references to Japan,
evidently believing that a situation has been created that must be dealt with gingerly, but, as they hope, firmly,
by the administration. Disclosures that have recently been made to the administration concerning the activities of Japan in Mexico are of such a character that they can not be ignored. There is no ground for believing the situation to be alarming, but senators who attended the conference are convinced the day is at hand when a decisive step must be taken to show
the world, and Japan especially, that the United States, undeterred by the acts of any other power, intends to be the dominant factor in settling the disturbances in Mexico.

Both Moral and Material Aid.

That Japan has extended both her moral and material support to Huerta has been conclusively proved, it is said. For some time this government has been endeavoring to ascertain where Huerta obtained his military supplies. That he is well equipped with guns and ammunition the administration has known. It was supposed he has been purchasing them in Europe, but where he obtained the money has been an unsolved mystery.

It now is stated that those sinews of war have been supplied, not by Japanese firms willing to take the risk of ultimate payment, but by the Japanese government itself. Advances to this effect, the accuracy of which is not to be disputed, have been received in Washington.

These guns consist of the cast-off equipment of the Japanese troops in the war with Russia, now out of date, but ample for the use of the Mexican federal army.

It is with these arms that the latest levies of Mexican troops have been equipped, and through their use Huerta expects to wrest victory when the conflict comes between his troops and the Constitutionalists, now preparing their plans for their march southward.

Why Wilson Reversed Himself.

This is the information, it is believed, that has caused the president to reverse himself in the matter of raising the embargo against munitions of war for the Constitutionalists from this country. In no other way can the Constitutionalists hope to compete against the superior armament of Huerta's troops.

"Everybody knows that Huerta is bankrupt; that the Mexican government has defaulted on the interest on its national debt, and that until recently it was impossible for Huerta to pay his army. The Japanese people are too good traders to give value for nothing, and it is not improbable to suppose that a consideration of which we now know nothing may be at the bottom of this transaction."

Says United States Should Act.

"Why," asked this Senator, "may not Japan demand a concession for a naval base in Magdalena Bay in return for its very material aid to the Huerta government? If Huerta, whether as a falling ruler or as one who sustains himself in power through the aid of Japan, grants such a concession the United States must protest against it as it did before. More than that, the United States must prevent that concession, or any other move of Huerta that would endanger the peace and safety of the United States."

"Is it going too far to ask ourselves
whether Japan, in her present activities in Mexico, is not deliberately seeking to create a situation that will bring the relations between that government and the United States near to the breaking point? The situation in Mexico, with Japan intermeddling, is full of possibilities, and may well
cause the president and the country
serious concern."

With frankness the president is said to have discussed another phase of Japanese activity, that senators say looks as if it might be a part of a prepared plan. Recently there arrived on the west coast of Mexico the battleship Idzuma.

It is customary for officers of ships visiting foreign countries to pay a visit of ceremony to the officials of the country visited. To the amazement of the administration, however,
it was learned that coincident with the arrival of the Idzuma preparations have been made for a five days' festival in Mexico City in honor of the officers of this ship.

OUR POWERFUL NORTH ATLANTIC FLEET

This is considered to be the most powerful battleship fleet in the world. Recently it returned from the Mediterranean, and left Hampton Roads for the south. During the last battle practice each of the vessels made a record for herself, while the flagship Wyoming broke the world's record at target practice. The photograph shows the nine ships in the order in which they usually sail. The Wyoming is in the lead at the right, and is followed by the Florida, Utah, Delaware, North Dakota, South Carolina, Rhode Island, Georgia and New Jersey.

chine in Suitcase Near Plant of Calumet District Shaft.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Congressional investigation of the strikes in the Colorado coal mine and the Michigan copper mine fields was agreed upon at a caucus of the house Democrats by a vote of 149 to 17 Thursday. The investigation will be conducted by the house committee on mines and mining, of which Representative Foster
of Illinois is chairman.

Representative Keating of Colorado, who with Representative McDonald of Michigan led the fight for the inquiry,
said after the caucus he expected hearings would be in progress at Denver and Pueblo, and possibly Trinidad, within a fortnight. The resolution to authorize the investigation will be urged for action in the house.

Houghton, Jan. 24.—A suitcase found by Undersheriff Harris in a clump of underbrush near the power plant of the Ahmeek mine in Keweenaw county contained an infernal machine, according to reports received here. Attached to one end of a small board, according to the report, was a can partly filled with nitroglycerin. On the other end was fastened an alarm

wires with the can.

FIVE KILLED, 20 INJURED

Michigan Central Train Collides With Freight Train Just Out of Jackson, Mich.

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 27.—The last of the twenty injured persons were removed from the wreckage of the Michigan Central train which collided with a freight train three miles outside of Jackson, early Monday. The death list of five persons, it was believed, would be increased by the deaths of several of the injured. The collision apparently resulted from a misunderstanding of orders. It was said the freight train was supposed to take a siding to allow the passenger to pass. The wreck occurred a quarter of a mile beyond the switch.
Every passenger in the first coach, the smoking car, was either killed or wounded. The only body identified at dawn Monday morning was that of Engineer Cal Johnson of the passenger train.

on Saturday passed the Alaska railway bill directing the president to purchase or construct 1,000 miles of road in Alaska at a cost not exceeding $40,000,000. The house has a similar bill pending. The vote was 46 to 16.

Fifteen Republicans and Senator Poindexter, Progressive, voted for the bill. Senator Bacon, Hoke Smith and Williams, Democrats, voted against it.

The bill places upon the president responsibility for the selection of the route from tidewater to the interior of Alaska and the construction, equipment and operation or leasing of such lines as he may construct or buy to constitute this route. The broadest powers are conferred upon the president in carrying out his duties.

The bill provides for a redemption fund into which shall be paid 75 percent of all moneys derived from the sale of public lands in Alaska, or of the coal or mineral contents thereof.
Machinery utilized in the construction of the Panama canal is made available for the construction work.

Unavailing efforts to reduce the $40-000,000 appropriation authorized for the work were made during the closing hours of the debate. Senator Hoke Smith sought to have the appropriation reduced to $25,000,000 and Senator Smoot to $35,000,000.

With the consent of the territorial committee the bill was amended before passage to require the senate's approval of the appointment of civil engineers receiving over $3,000 per annum, to forbid any payment for the good will of existing railways, giving injured employees the right to sue the government and limiting the government's defenses to those provided for in the federal employers' liability law of 1908.

"This is the greatest encouragement the west has received in many years," said Secretary Lane in commenting on the passage of the bill.

GOETHALS TO HEAD POLICE

Place Offered to Canal Engineer, Says
Mayor Mitchell of New York.

New York, Jan. 26.—Mayor Mitchell made a statement on Friday indicating that Col. George W. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal,
will be the next police commissioner of New York City.

"From the beginning," said the mayor, "I have wanted Colonel Goethals to head the police department. Recently George W. Perkins urged him to accept the place. I am to have a personal interview with Mr. Perkins."

BANDIT ROBS A TRAIN

ROBBER TERRORIZES PASSEN-GERS ON MICHIGAN CENTRAL.

Compels Pullman Porter to Assist Him in Gathering Cash From Occupants of Berths.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Thrilling stories of how a lone bandit—a slender, nervous young fellow with a big revolver—held up Michigan Central passenger train No. 7, west-bound, at 1:45 a. m. on Friday, near Jackson, Mich., robbing and terrifying passengers in one Pullman sleeper, among them several Chicagoans, were told in Chicago
when the train arrived.

The uniqueness of the robber's methods—some of the members of the train crew thought them comic—contributed largely to his success, both in the hold-up and in his escape. Although he aroused six drowsy passengers with the aid of a cowed porter,
he succeeded in getting less than $300
in money. He snatched jewelry.

At the same time, the bandit forced the Pullman porters into the limelight
—one in a serio-comic role and the other in the hero's garb. It was
"Louis" Thoms' coolness and precision that prevented further operations of the robber and caused him
to leap from the train near Parma,
Mich., while it was slowing down.

In the country about Parma and in the city of Jackson the bandit is being hunted, according to press dispatches, by Sheriff J. F. Greble and a well-armed posse. They say the fugitive cannot escape. The Michigan authorities believe the man returned to Jackson after escaping from the train.
Three other men who are reported to have left the train when the robber jumped off are believed to be tramps stealing a ride.

FLEES FROM CAPITAL

DETACHMENTS OF MARINES LAND TO QUELL BATTLE IN THE DISTURBED CITY.

The President of Haiti, Michel Oreste, Took Refuge Aboard German Cruiser Vineta.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Port au Prince, Haiti.—The president of Haiti, Michel Oreste, fled from the capital and took refuge aboard the German cruiser Vineta. He was accompanied by his wife. Fighting began in the city. Soon afterward the president left the palace under escort and was conveyed in a launch to the warship lying in the harbor. Almost immediately detachments of bluejack-ets were landed from the United States armored cruiser Montana and the Vineta. Firing continued, and it was evident that the revolutionary movement which began in the north and spread to some of the southern towns had gained sufficient strength in the capital to threaten not only the power but the life of President Oreste.

It was the intention of Oreste to abdicate several days ago, but later he declined to do so, hoping with the aid of congress to prevent the overthrow of his administration. Congress has failed to do anything. The arrival of the Montana and Vineta has relieved the situation here so far as foreign residents are concerned. The legations are now under guard.

The Haitian rebels repulsed an attempt by government troops under the command of M. Pradel, minister of the interior, to land at St. Marc, 44 miles to the northwest of the capital. The government troops, who had proceeded on board the dispatch boat Nord
Alexis, at once returned to this city.

INHUMAN YOUTH

Who Confesses He Planted Bombs in Tenements For "Black Handers."

New York.—Alfred Lehman, an under-sized youth scarcely out of his teens, sat in the witness chair and confessed to having partaken in 16 bomb outrages, revealed knowledge of 80, cleared up the mystery of two murders and furnished information concerning a number of lesser crimes, including arson and burglary. Lehman was called as a witness in the trial of Angelo Sylvester, accused of one of the bomb outrages. Lehman told the court of the burning of two Brooklyn houses for the insurance, and many other lesser crimes. He said the bomb outrages usually brought the men doing the work $50.

STOPPED TRAFFIC FOR PUSSY

Business on New York Thoroughfare
Interrupted While Mother Cat
Crosses the Street.

It was a busy day in Fulton street.
Lines of trucks were bucking each other east and west, when out from a produce store came a cat, and dancing from her mouth was a kitten, with which she essayed to cross the street. Each time she started she had to turn back because of a truck, and her efforts soon attracted a crowd of idlers.

Down from the corner came a policeman. He soon saw what was the matter, and while there was nothing in the traffic regulations to cover the point, it took the bluecoat only a moment to decide what to do.

Going into the street he raised his hands in the way that truckmen have learned means "Stop." They stopped.
The cat, seeing her opportunity, took a firmer hold on the nape of her proprietor, and then, holding it high to keep its curved tail out of the mud, she slowly and deliberately picked her way across and disappeared in a cellar.

Useful Relative.

"Yes, my mother-in-law can make herself very useful at times."

"Glad you are fair enough to admit it."

"Of course I'll admit it. Why, just the other morning she was so provoked at me because I didn't get up and chop the ice off the front steps that she went out herself with a broom and ice pick. She is a stout lady, and when she slipped on the top step and bumped herself all the way to the sidewalk she fell so hard that she cracked the ice on every step. Then her language regarding my shortcomings was so warm that it melted all the fragments and left the steps as clean and smooth as they ever are in July."

sir?"

"No, indeed, doctor; I am a valets-dierist."

YET ANOTHER INVESTIGATION

ACTIVITY OF TWO IN HELPING LEGISLATURE TO ORGANIZE IN QUESTION.

LOBBIES ARE BEING PROBED

New Bill Proposes Fines For Women Who Wear Narrow Skirts—Another Measure Looks to Publication of School Text Books by State—Children's Home Cut Recommended.

(By Ernest W. Helm.)

Frankfort, Ky.—Close upon the heels of the lobby investigation has come another clinic for busy legislative surgeons. The subjects for the most recent probe are Percy Haley and Sam Shackelford, their activity in helping the legislature to organize having been challenged in a resolution offered by Representative Price, of Covington. The interest in the cases of M. O. Scott, president pro tem of the senate, and Wiley Dixon, chief clerk of the senate, will be the subject of inquiry. Under the Ray resolution, a committee of seven is proceeding to investigate lobbyists, who are active in Frankfort.

Would Bar Narrow Skirts.

Representative Huff went on record as being opposed to the narrow skirts. He introduced a bill to prohibit women over 18 years of age from wearing in public skirts of less width than 33 inches around the bottom and fixing a fine of not less than $1 nor more than $10 for violations of the act.

If the bill offered by Representative Tilford becomes a law the state of Kentucky will publish its own school text books under such rules as the state board of education may prescribe.

The senate investigation committee suggested that the salary of $5,000 paid to George L. Sehon, superintendent of the Kentucky Children's Home Society, is excessive, and recommended that the appropriation to the house be cut from $50,000 to $25,000.

The committee on appropriation favorably reported the bill providing for a $50,000 appropriation for a Kentucky exhibit at the Panama Pacific Exposition.

Aspires To Vacant Chair.

Dr. B. E. Manning, of Mt. Sterling, who was defeated for representative by Samuel Turley, has announced his candidacy to fill the vacancy caused by the latter's death. The election will be held February 4.

Farm Work For Convicts.

Land near the Frankfort Reformatory and the Eddyville penitentiary will be leased for a term of two years, with an option of purchase, should the 1916 general assembly see fit to appropriate the money, if a bill prepared by Attorney General Garnett is passed. The act is intended to provide for the employment on state farms of prisoners unfit for shop work or not under contract.

Illiteracy Commission Is Proposed.

The committee on Statutes has before it for recommendation the "Kentucky Illiteracy Commission Act," and among sponsors is Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, of Morehead, author of the moonlight schools for adults in the mountains. The measure provides for the creation of a commission to be appointed by the governor. Members are to receive no pay for service, but their necessary expenses in gathering data are to be defrayed by the state.

School Book Commission.

The text book measure enacted by the 1910 general assembly repealing the uniform school book law vested county school superintendents and boards in each county of the state with authority to select school books for their respective counties. The new bill, which has commanded universal interest at this session, provides for the appointment of the state school book commission of twelve, consisting of one man from each of the eleven congressional districts and the state superintendent of public instruction as ex-officio chairman.

New Senate Bills.

Eight Hundred Made Idle

Eighteen Mines Are Sold To a Pennsylvania Syndicate for Six Million Dollars—President Wilson Is Invited To Address State Educational Meeting.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.
Quicksand, Ky.—Eight hundred employees of logging camps were thrown out of employment when the bridge over the Kentucky river at this point was pulled entirely off its piers.
A hook on a log that was being moved over the bridge on a rolling machine caught, and the machinery could not be stopped until the bridge and log both had dropped into the river below. No work can be done until the bridge is replaced.
Eight men on the bridge at the time were thrown into the river and were rescued with difficulty. The damage to the bridge is estimated at $50,000.

Cut For Normal School.

In the senate the "Probe" committee submitted a report recommending that the annual appropriation for the Eastern Kentucky Normal School be reduced from $75,000 to $50,000; that the school farm be disposed of, and that the teaching of agriculture be discontinued. The report was referred to the senate committee on appropriations.

Taxing Intangible Property.

At the meeting of the joint revenue and taxation committee, Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman, speaking for the farmers, said they would consider with disfavor any tax matter that did not equalize the burden of taxation by bringing out the intangible property.

The dissections existing in the board of visitors of the Kentucky Institute for the Blind at Louisville were aired before the Senate Special "Probe" Committee.

An act offered by Senator R. H. Scott empowers the governor to aid in the settlement of strikes by the appointment of boards of arbitration upon application of those concerned.

Gov. McCreary has asked Gov. Cox to pardon "Steve" Taylor, colored, serving a life sentence in the Ohio penitentiary, who is a son of the old colored "mammy," who nursed the Kentucky chief executive.

The prison commission extended the contract with the Kentucky broom works at Eddyville for from 75 to 100 men at 75 cents per day.

Representative Phelps introduced a bill which, if passed, will authorize local courts to purchase bloodhounds.

BRIDGE WRECKED BY LOG CARRIER

SPAN OVER THE KENTUCKY AT QUICKSAND IS PULLED FROM ITS PIERS.

EIGHT HUNDRED MADE IDLE

Eighteen Mines Are Sold To a Pennsylvania Syndicate for Six Million Dollars—President Wilson Is Invited To Address State Educational Meeting.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.
Quicksand, Ky.—Eight hundred employees of logging camps were thrown out of employment when the bridge over the Kentucky river at this point was pulled entirely off its piers.
A hook on a log that was being moved over the bridge on a rolling machine caught, and the machinery could not be stopped until the bridge and log both had dropped into the river below. No work can be done until the bridge is replaced.
Eight men on the bridge at the time were thrown into the river and were rescued with difficulty. The damage to the bridge is estimated at $50,000.

EIGHTEEN MINES SOLD

Pennsylvania Company Secures Coal Property Worth Six Millions.

Henderson, Ky.—Eighteen coal mines of Western Kentucky have passed into the control of the Deepwater Coal and Coke Co., a $10,000,000 Pittsburg organization, the sale of the lands involving an outlay of over $6,000,000. Since gaining control of practically all of the coal lands in this section, comprising fifty thousand acres, the Deepwater company will construct a number of small railroads so that the coal mined may be brought to Henderson, where it will be placed on boats and sent down the river to New Orleans. Thence it will be transferred aboard seagoing steamers for the foreign market.

PRESIDENT IS INVITED

Efforts Will Be Made To Have Him Address Educational Association.

Louisville, Ky.—Efforts will be made by the Kentucky Educational association to have President Woodrow Wilson deliver an address at its annual meeting here next April. John W. Barr, a personal friend of President Wilson, has promised the officers of the association to use his efforts. Others will be asked to use their persuasive powers on the chief executive. Some of the most prominent educators in the country have accepted invitations to speak at the convention.

CUMBERLAND'S NEEDS URGED.

Somerset, Ky.—Great interest is manifested in this section of Kentucky over efforts that are being made in Washington to have immediate improvement of the Cumberland river authorized. Congressman from the state have joined efforts in urging this work, the argument by Representative A. W. Barkley before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee being the last encouragement to be received by champions of the project in this section.

YOUNG IRVINE EDITOR

Although John W. Walker is among the youngest editors of Kentucky, he is making a success of the Irvine Sun such as would do credit to a veteran, and his paper is accomplishing much good for his community.

NEW TOWNS SPRINGING UP.

Jackson, Ky.—The railroad extension along the North Fork of the Kentucky river is opening up a virgin coal field of immense possibilities. No expense has been spared in building this new track in eliminating curves and cutting down grades, so as to make it possible to haul heavy loads at a minimum cost. The region is growing in population in a remarkable way. There are half a dozen towns along this new line, where a year ago there were only cornfields. The coal is thick and easily mined.

REARRESTED AFTER PARDON.

Louisville, Ky.—W. G. Andrews, for years prominent as a choir singer in Louisville churches, who has been serving a sentence of one year in jail, was pardoned by Gov. McCreary, but while he was packing up his belongings a deputy United States marshal rearrested him on a warrant sworn out by federal officers, charging him with having represented himself as a government white slave officer.

SUITS AGAINST RAILROADS.

Covington, Ky.—Suits were instituted in the United States court against several railroad companies operating in Kentucky. The L. & N., C. & O., I. C., N. O. & T. P. and the Eastern Kentucky railroad companies are charged with operating cars on which the coupling or other equipment or mechanism were out of repair.

EXTENSION OF SCHOOL TERM.

Frankfort, Ky.—The state department of education is making out the rolls for the final distribution of the state school fund for the present year, which will be sent out February 1. There will be sufficient surplus in the fund, Superintendent Hamlett said, to warrant the extension of the school term.

Rev. J. B. Brooks, of St. Louis, has been called to the pastorate of Edmont, Liberty and Beech Grove Baptist churches.

The high school and places of amusement of Flemingsburg were closed on account of scarlatina and diphtheria.

Of 5,035 white children in the Louisville public schools examined for trachoma, 116 positive cases were found and 63 uncertain.

G. T. Wineman, former town marshal of Campton, was tried on two charges of selling whiskey without a license, and was fined $120.

Cumberland and Barren rivers are lower at this season than for any like period in their history. Lumber staves and merchandise are tied up.

Former Senator Jo C. S. Blackburn and Mrs. Blackburn, of Versailles, have gone to Washington City, where they will spend the remainder of the winter.

Representative William J. Fields recommended the appointment of Gilbert Adams to be postmaster at Flemingsburg, Fleming county, to succeed William H. Harrison.

John F. Price, an old and prominent citizen of Lexington, who had made a handsome fortune and gained a wide reputation in the manufacture of sausage, died after an illness of four weeks.

COAL CARS ARE TOO HIGH.

Lexington, Ky.—Large quantities of coal now being mined in the Kentucky mountains is being stocked. The reason for this, it is said, is primarily shortage of cars. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Co. recently had delivered from the Compressed Steel Car Co. 1,500 cars, but owing to the excessive curvature on the mountain roads, they were top-heavy and they have all been sent back to the foundry to have 18 inches taken off all around the top.
